LATEST DEAL IN CINCINNATI.

Al Johnson's Selling Out to the National League.

Baseball circles were stirred this morning by the announcement that Al Johnson had jumped the American Association and sold out to the National League for $30,000, thus ending at least one phase of the baseball war.

The League now has eight clubs for its circuit and the Association but seven, and the playing of another club in the American Association will be no easy matter at this late stage of the season.

Just how the Cincinnati business is going to turn out is a difficult matter even yet to tell.
When the Boston and Philadelphia people renounced their claim on the Cincinnati Club to Johnson it was an indecent for him to have sold the American Association, and that fact may yet bring more trouble.

It is only a little matter of some $15,000, but as a rule, business men do not make presents of such sums to have other people drop them in the mire and pocket the money.

Ned Hanlon is an intimate friend of Johnson and he was of great assistance to J. Palmer O'Neil, of Pittsburgh, in bringing about the new deal. Johnson's price at the recent League meeting was $40,000, and he would not budge a bit from that amount.
O'Neil, however, on this occasion, offered him $30,000 and the $2,000 in money which had been advanced by him in Cincinnati; but he was never enough to try to get Johnson to give him a $30,000 bond to protect him against the wrath of the Boston and Philadelphia people.

The best thing O'Neil could do was to get Johnson to accept $20,000 in cash and let $4,000 stand in notes until July.
Johnson has agreed not to go into baseball again for ten years.

SIXTH AVENUE TERRORIZED.

Another Bold Burglary Added to a Rapidly Growing List.

Sixth avenue merchants, between Fourteenth and Sixteenth streets, are much agitated over the recent bold burglaries of stores.
No less than six "breaks" have occurred in a short time in the block on the east side of the avenue, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets, and in spite of a permanent search on the part of Detectives Pratt and Davis, of Capt.
Heilly's "Tenderloin" precinct, assisted by Detectives Lyman and Mulholland, of Inspector Byrnes's staff, the guilty parties are still at large.

The latest victim is Charles F. Hansen, a druggist, at 264 Sixth avenue, who lives in Brooklyn and on Sundays leaves his store in charge of his clerk, Louis Girardeau.
When Mr. Girardeau opened the store yesterday morning he found that unprofitable customers had called at the store sometime between midnight and dawn, when he closed the store, and 7 o'clock yesterday morning, when he opened it.

The room back of the prescription desk was strewn with valuable papers taken from the safe. Fifty-five dollars in the cash drawer was unaccounted for, but $200 in currency and several checks were also taken from the safe, which was an old one. The burglars had battered the front of it, trying to force the door, and had then endeavored to pull the lock.

Mr. Hansen remembered that Andrew Philippini's saloon, at 230 Sixth avenue, had recently been burglarized three times, while George Holliday's drug store, at No. 230, had been broken into twice, and he immediately reported the theft to the police.

Cert. Girardeau also recollected that two well-dressed young men had spent considerable time in the store, Sunday, occasionally making small purchases, laughing and joking.
He said he did not know who they were, but he was sure they were not customers.

He also remembered that the young men seemed to take a great interest in the antique safe, although he thought nothing of it at the time.

Mr. Holden said this morning that he was satisfied that his store was "burglarized" by a boy who was formerly employed by him and who was well acquainted with the store. All the places burglarized were entered from the rear through the new Greenwich Savings Bank building, now being constructed at Sixteenth street.

Mr. Holden became his own detective, and in two hours located two pug dogs and a parrot that had been stolen from him. The bird store on Broadway, near Forty-third street, he got back and then dropped the matter.
Druggist Hansen does not think his place was burglarized by a boy, but by experts; and the police agree with him.

Andrew Philipkin's keeper said this morning that the saloon were all found locked on each occasion, but the fan lights were all open and suggested the way an entrance was obtained.

The cash-drawer was emptied of $70 or $80 each time, and Mr. Philipkin's overcoat was taken.

It was said that last week, Ketter's clothing store at 235 Sixth avenue, was broken into and several overcoats were taken.

HAS SARATOGA'S BIG HOTEL.

The Grand Union Hotel at Saratoga will this year be under a new management. The house has been leased for a term of years to James G. B. Woolworth, of Woodworth & Robinson.

Mr. Woolworth went to Saratoga this morning, to make arrangements for opening the house on May 1.

He has had some experience in the hotel business as steward of the Grand Hotel in this city.

THEIR LAST WEEK TO LIVE.

Slocum and Smiler Realize That Their End Is Near.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) SING SING, March 10.—As the days draw near for the execution of the condemned men Slocum and Smiler, the big prison shows signs of the suppressed excitement which has always been manifested just before the date fixed for the first experiment here with electricity as a mode of capital punishment.

The electrical experts who are to inspect the instruments of death and supervise the preliminary tests of the fatal machinery are daily expected now, and everything is ready for their approval.

Warden Brush is plainly anxious over the possible movements of the condemned men's lawyers. While aware of the fact that they propose to make efforts to secure another stay of execution, he cannot proceed on the assumption that they will succeed, and consequently must make every preparation just as though he had not learned that such steps were contemplated.

While every other preparation for the electrocution of Slocum and Smiler, for the tests, as the experts may advise some change after the test has been made—has been completed, there is one thing that Warden Brush will leave until Saturday.

That is, the sending out of invitations to the citizens and physicians that the law requires shall witness the execution. Other was everything is ready.

The condemned men appear now to realize that this is the last week that they are sure of living, and show more of a disposition to prepare for the end.

Slocum and Smiler accept the religious consolation offered them gratefully.

Neither speaks of the death chair nor evinces any emotion to learn what is being done for them by their lawyers. They appear to be satisfied that what little hope they yet possess has been taken away, and so they wait without making any questions which at times appear to be on their lips.

Of the other condemned men, Trezza is getting very despondent, but McVane is just as indifferent to his fate as when he first arrived at the prison over a year ago.

ASLEEP IN A BURNING BUILDING.

Collector Coffey's Narrow Escape from an Awful Death.

Jack Coffey, collector for the Plainfield Printing Co., at 1550 and 1552 Third avenue, was asleep in the company's office when fire broke out in the building a little before daylight this morning.

He was roused by the firemen, and succeeded, though with great difficulty, in escaping with the company's books.

Two alarms were sent out for the fire, which caused about $10,000 damage before it was put out. Its cause has not been ascertained.

JAMAICA'S VITRIOL THROWER.

The Accused Man Is Refused Bail—Condition of the Little Victim.

Frank Reingold, the man accused of throwing vitriol on Clerk Contractor Greenbaum's little son at Jamaica, L. I., yesterday, is a prisoner in Jamaica Town Hall, awaiting examination Thursday. Bail has been offered for him, but refused by Justice Hendrickson.

The turned child was as comfortable as could be expected when an EVENING WORLD reporter called this morning. His flesh is badly burned and he suffers great pain. It is feared that one ear, into which some of the fiery fluid dropped, is so injured that an operation will be needed.

Baroness, the leader of the cloakmakers' union, declares that the men who visited Greenbaum's house are not members of the union and are not countenanced by the union.

BLOCKADE ON THE "L."

A Broken Piston Delays Traffic at the Buxton Hour.

A most exasperating blockade occurred at 7.15 o'clock this morning on the Third avenue L road between the Ninety-ninth and Eighty-ninth street stations on the down track.

The piston rod of engine 26, of a Chatham Square train, broke soon after leaving the Ninety-ninth street station.

The train stopped and the services of another engine were required to haul it to the Eighty-ninth street station, where the disabled motor was switched off to a siding. A delay of half an hour occurred just when traffic was getting heaviest.

NEW MACOMB'S DAM BRIDGE.

Plans Adopted by the Board of Es-

After a long discussion of the reports of Engineers Buller, Beck, Cooper and Clarke, the Board of Estimate and Apportionment today approved plans for the new Macomb's Dam Bridge.

The plans provide for a bridge of the width of 604 feet, giving a roadway of 424 feet in all.

"YADDO" A BLACKENED RUIN.

Destruction of Banker Spencer Trask's Elegant Home at Saratoga.

Spencer Trask, the well-known banker, of 16 Broad street, was suffering from a severe attack of acute bronchitis this morning at his home, Washington square, north, when he was apprised of the total destruction by fire of beautiful Summer residence, Yaddo, at Saratoga.

The fire broke out yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, and the beautiful structure was magnificently furnished, and costed many sums of art and literature, collected by Mr. Trask.
He was in Saratoga last year and purchased some valuable pictures and statuary, besides considerable hand covered furniture, most of which is supposed to have been lost.

The total loss will reach $150,000, on which there is an insurance of $50,000.
